A night photograph capturing a vibrant green aurora borealis (Northern Lights) in the sky. The aurora appears as a broad, luminous band of green light stretching across the upper half of the frame. Below the sky, a dark, silhouetted line of evergreen trees separates the foreground from a small, snow-covered village. The village is illuminated by warm, yellowish lights from buildings and street lamps, creating a cozy contrast with the cold night. The overall scene is a serene winter landscape under a magical celestial display.
